A large and appreciative audience greeted the first night performance of "Tune In," a two-act musical comedy, presented Thursday evening in the Gettysburg high school by the high school mixed chorus.

Miss Marjorie Grant as "Mrs. Kroggins," and Robert Lefever as "J. Bottomley Binks," a radio announcer, carried off the honors by giving excellent portrayals of their respective parts. Both revealed fine voices that found favor with the audience.

Sharing honors with Miss Grant and Mr. Lefever was Miss Betty Jane Snyder, who as "Jean Kroggins," was particularly pleasing in her vocal selections.

Miss Elvira Slaybaugh and Rodney Sachs played the leads in the roles of "Mitzel," a switchboard operator, and "Jerry Kennedy," an advertising manager, and although their performances were slightly over-shadowed by several minor characters, performed commendably.

Plays Comedy Roll

Other members of the cast in addition to those already mentioned were: "Kasper Kroggins," George Amick; "Joe Brown," Donald Everhart; "Dyvo Dave," Charles Shuman; "Bob," Fred Troxler; "Lysander Phipps," George Olinger; "Tilly, Milly and Billy," Edna Mae Black, Jean Thomas, Arlene Spangler.

A instrumental trio composed of Raymond Fair, Cleason Fair and Maurice Green played several selections before the opening curtain.

Miss Eleanor Weller and Miss Edna Zinn gave a tap dancing routine between acts as did Miss Jean Stanton and Miss Colleen Thompson.

The singing and dancing choruses were pleasing. The following participated as members of the ensembles: Anna C. Hoffman, Janice Harbach, Maxine McGregor, Betty Swope, Jean Culp, Sara Jane Sheffer, Irene Martin, Marian Mashburn, Sara Benson, Lois Kadel, Mary E. 35 Children Get Gifts At
"Xmas Party"

Thirty-five small children were guests of the Business and Professional women's club from 7 until 9 o'clock Thursday evening at the Y. W. C. A. at their annual St. Nicholas party.

The group met in the dining room and under the direction of Miss Maude Whiteleather and Miss Esther Tipton played various games and indulged in peanut butters and peanut grabs.

At 8 o'clock the children sat in a "magic circle," closed their eyes and "wished hard" for a Christmas tree.

They were then taken into the front room and were seated around a large trimmed tree and again closed their eyes and wished hard for St. Nicholas, who suddenly appeared from the chimney place.

After greeting each child and having many messages poured into his ears, the genial saint presented each child with the gift from the tree which bore their respective names.

The joy of Christmas reigned as the small children, at a given signal, opened their packages and found something they had particularly asked for.

After the opening of the gifts, refreshments of popcorn balls and chocolate milk were served to the guests, while tea and Christmas cookies were served from a candle-decked table to the club members.

Miss Mary Scott was chairman of the committee in charge, which consisted of Mrs. Fred Pfeffer, Miss Helen Sheely, Miss Margaret Williams, Miss Maude Whiteleather, Miss Mary Bittinger, Miss Martha Stallsmith, Miss Mildred Weikert, Mrs. Marie Ziegler and Miss Esther Tipton.

ATLANTIC AIR SERVICE IN '37

Officials of Four Governments Confident Mail Will Be Carried 4 Times a Week.

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Regular trans-Atlantic air service for 1937 with four round trips a week by giant passenger-mail planes, was projected Thursday as the "confident hope" of officials of four governments.

A formal statement issued at the close of a week of conferences between American, British, Irish and Canadian government representatives said "understandings" reached on a reciprocal basis had raised the "hope" for the 1937 objective.

"It is expected that experimental flights will be begun early in the summer of 1936," said R. Walton Moore, assistant secretary of state and chairman of the conference, "and it is hoped that scheduled services will begin by the summer of 1937."

Four Trips a Week "When the full regular service is inaugurated, it is provided that there will be four round trips per week."

Moore said the department of commerce has approved establishment of trans-Atlantic airways by way of Canada, Newfoundland and the Irish Free State to England—the northern route, and by way of Bermuda to England, the southern.

In addition, a route from Bermuda to Puerto Rico "to be extended by mutual consent" was sanctioned. Persons close to the congress suggested this could be a "spur" line which would connect the regular trans-Atlantic route with the Pan-American airways line now in operation between the United States and South America. Puerto Rico is one of the stations on the Pan-American route south of Miami.

The provision for extension of the "spur" was believed to have been intended to leave the way open for expansion of the trans-Atlantic service to the South American-African airway over which French seaplanes and German dirigibles now operate.

New York, Baltimore, Cape Charles or Norfolk, Virginia, and Charleston, South Carolina, were listed in the statement as possible American termini of the trans-Atlantic service, although it was said no final determination has been made.

"It is recognized that the northern route is much shorter than the southern route," Moore continued, "and therefore will have the advantage of more economical operation, but this fact does not preclude the possibility of considerable use being made of the southern route."

The statement made no mention of what companies will undertake the service, but it is known that preliminary plans have been made by Pan-American and the British Imperial Airways, Ltd.

WOMAN BAILED AFTER KILLING

Mrs. Lillian Maddox Gets Freedom on Bond After Washington Shooting.

Rockville, Md., Dec. 13 (AP)—Mrs. Lillian Callahan Maddox is at liberty today for the first time since she shot and killed Edward V. Killen, so-called "Mayor of Washington's underworld," on November 23.

Mrs. Maddox was released on $5,000 bond soon after Police Judge Harold Smith changed the charge against her from murder to manslaughter and granted bail.

"I am satisfied," the judge said in announcing his decision, "that under no circumstances would a jury convict this defendant of more than manslaughter. Evidence shows that there was a self-defense motive."

Presents Confession State's Attorney James H. Pugh, who must present the case to the Montgomery county grand jury, acquiesced in the change in the charge.

Mrs. Maddox, wearing an orange-colored dress and pert brown hat, was in contrast to her disheveled appearance on the day she was brought to the jail here after the drunken quarrel which ended in Killen's death.

Tells of Threats She did not take the witness stand, but sat calmly by while her attorneys presented her signed confession to the court. Afterwards, however, she fainted in the jail when she returned there to get her clothes.

Her confession told of several threats she said Killen made on her life. One of them, she said, occurred a few minutes before she shot him down.

FIRE DAMAGES CAPITAL P. O.

$100,000 Blaze in Washington Today; Flames Start in Filing Room.

Washington, Dec. 14 (AP)—The $2,000,000 post office building which stands on Pennsylvania avenue just four blocks from the white house, was scarred today by an interior fire which blazed dangerously through early morning hours.

All the capital's fire apparatus was summoned. More than a dozen firemen were overcome temporarily in their efforts to reach the blaze which never was visible to hundreds of spectators.

Officials sought to learn what valuable records had been lost. The blaze started in a file room on the sixth floor which officials said housed documents of the general accounting office and reclamation.

One semi-official estimate put the replaceable damage at "more than $100,000."

Postmaster General Farley was working as usual this morning, three floors below the scene of the fire.

Nearly 100 janitors were sweeping away water on the 5th, 6th and 7th floors, which stood one-inch deep over a large area.

Suspension of Life, Covering Centuries, Regarded Possible

New York, Dec. 13 (AP)—In a scientific definition of death new in scope, Dr. Alexis Carrel, Rockefeller Institute scientist, Thursday night predicted that it may become possible to suspend human life and start it again, living several centuries.

Dr. Carrel is the man who showed the physical immortality of a chicken heart, which he kept living by itself for twenty-four years at the institute. For him Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh last summer perfected an artificial heart which keeps whole organs alive outside the body.

Dr. Carrel's new definition was made in a talk to the New York Academy of Medicine on "The Mystery of Death."

He defined two kinds of death—reversible and irreversible. Out of the first came man's hope for better health and longer life.

Suspension Held Remote A possibility "very remote" is suspension of life.

It is reasonable, Dr. Carrel held, to suppose that part of the human personality may escape death. Present scientific facts neither prove nor disprove this after life.

All of these points Dr. Carrel emphasized in a written summary of his report to the academy.

"If science is allowed to go on eight or ten centuries, disease may perhaps be suppressed," Dr. Carrel said. "But there is no hope of ever conquering senescence and death."

"There are only three ways to die—by failure of the heart, or of the central nervous system, or by alterations in the composition of the blood."

Two Types Exist, He Says "Deaths are reversible or irreversible. An example of reversible death is a man stabbed through the heart. Circulation and respiration stops. The man is legally dead. However, he is not hopelessly dead. If proper treatment were applied he would resuscitate. All his organs, even his brain, are still alive."

"A few minutes later comes irreversible death."

Convict Hoepfels In West Point Plot

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP)—Representative John H. Hoepfel and his son, Charles, were convicted by a District of Columbia Supreme Court jury Thursday of conspiracy to sell a West Point appointment for $1,000.

The jury deliberated exactly six hours after a four-day trial.

Representative Hoepfel, a Democrat of California, heard the verdict with bowed head.

The maximum penalty for the offense is two years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The Hoepfels were convicted of conspiring to sell the appointment of James W. Ives, of Baltimore, a former Olympic athlete.

The case went to the jury, composed of ten men and two women, at 5:51 p. m. Thursday.

Justice Daniel W. O'Donoghue ordered the release of the Hoepfels on bonds of $1,000 each.

"They have four days in which to move for a new trial."

BIRTH ANNOUNCEMENT Mr. and Mrs. Fred Boyer, Gettysburg R. 3, announce the birth of a son this morning. Both mother and baby are doing nicely.

FLOGGERS OF 3 ARE "KNOWN"

Southern Prosecutor Says He Expects to Arrest Assaultants Soon.

Tampa, Fla., Dec. 13 (AP)—The arrest of "fifteen or twenty persons" for the flogging death of Joseph Shoemaker were promised by J. Rex Ferris, State's Attorney, but the time of the arrests was left indefinite.

Ferris said the suspects all would be taken into custody when information against them is complete, probably next week.

Various investigations by city and county officers of the punishment of Shoemaker, E. F. Poulo and S. D. Rogers moved toward a special grand jury session starting Monday. The men were organizers of the unemployed.

Labor Enters Case In advance of the grand jury, organized labor entered the case when President William Green threatened to move the American Federation of Labor's 1936 convention from Tampa unless the criminals are brought to justice.

Wendell C. Heaton, president of the State Labor Federation, requested the Central Trades and Labor Assembly of Tampa to look into the flogging.

Heaton is expected here to make a personal investigation.

As Shoemaker was buried Thursday, an inspection of his personal effects contained a letter from President Roosevelt when the letter was Governor of New York State. It was written April 23, 1932, and contained an expression of thanks for material which Shoemaker had submitted on his political views.

Roosevelt Seconded Views Mr. Roosevelt said he was "in fundamental accord" with a plan Shoemaker advanced on "production for use instead of profit."

At the time Shoemaker was a State committeeman of the Socialist party in Vermont.

Shoemaker also had engaged in political activities in Tampa. He was the leader of a "Modern Democratic" organization which put up a slate of independent candidates against Mayor R. E. L. Chances and other Democratic nominees in the recent Tampa municipal election.

Looking Around

We wonder if you knew that . . . the Abner Doubleday baseball memorial at Cooperstown, New York, is in honor of the same Major General Abner Doubleday who participated in the Battle of Gettysburg here in 1863. . . . that Major Doubleday laid out the first baseball diamond at Cooperstown. . . . that Gettysburg college has never beaten Navy in basketball, losing all four games played. . . . that Dickinson has defeated the Bullets in 22 of 40 basketball ball battles. . . . that the Bullets have won 42 of 46 games in the Eastern Pennsylvania intercollegiate cage league of which they have won four successive titles. . . . that Allentown prep has been scheduled to play the college frosh here January 15. . . . that Gettysburg college has defeated P. and M. no less than 42 times in 48 attempts on the court. . . . that basketball was introduced at Gettysburg college in 1898 but the first varsity game was not played until 1901 when the Bullets lost at Dickinson, 42-14.

Final selection of a lineup for the Gettysburg high basketball team in its opening game against Washington Township high here Tuesday evening is not expected to be made until Tuesday. Coach Forney has been using two complete teams in recent drills, the one composed of Stock, Little and Plantz, forwards, Dutera, center, and Sachs and Everhart, guards, and the other of Stahl and Gilbert, forwards, Lefever, center, and Weikert and Jones, guards. A group of former high players scrimmaged against the Maroons Thursday evening and Coach Forney used both of his combinations successfully.

The Arendtsville vocational school basketball teams will journey to Mercersburg for basketball games this evening. Both boys and girls will play.

Fairfield high will attempt to break a two-game losing streak in a double-header at New Oxford this evening.

Biglerville high will be host to the Quincy high cage teams tonight.

NEVER MIND THE LADY

by David Garth

SYNOPSIS: Allaire West is just arriving at her father's Virginia estate as the sun rises. Allaire has lived very speedily, although with fewer deviations from the proprieties than either her father or mother. But in the tropics Allaire has not been a very happy girl. She never has been the same carefree girl since. Terry is a young engineer, and although Allaire does not know it, Terry is at the moment in the States. The girl is looking over the West estate.

Chapter 17. CONVERSATION PIECE

Allaire's father and mother hadn't cared a farthing for tradition or memory. They'd purchased the estate as a happy compromise between her mother's love of Washington society and her father's reverence for Kentucky as a more suitable location for his racing stable.

And they'd done their best to remodel it into a showplace—long sweeping wings to accommodate more guests added to the original mansion, destroying its simplicity and solidarity; the old driveway winding its leisurely course through thick-growing evergreens changed at great cost of money and trees into a gleaming paved double drive; the picturesque coachhouse demolished to make room for an eight-car garage. They would have to pick that one spot.

But even at that they'd failed to wreck the atmosphere of the old place entirely. They had failed in other ways too—for her mother had long since retired to her home in Washington where from behind the bulwarks of her own social circle and private income she made sophisticated nose-thumbing gestures at her husband, except when something with social and diplomatic lure like that polo trip brought them together again.

And Allaire's tall slim father, his best polo days over, had settled down her either to break his neck in a fox hunt some day or else drink himself to death, either of which he would probably do very gracefully. It was sunrise alone that gave Westlands any dignity.

In the distance through a grove of trees she could see the red roofs of the stables—smart modern buildings surrounded by a covered tank-trace and adjacent to a private three-quarters of a mile exercise course.

A couple of her father's brood mares were running up and down near a white fence. Be too bad if he ever bred a Derby-winner—he wouldn't have anything in life to live for.

Allaire smiled slightly and sent the car into motion. She flashed in through the gates, sped up that long cement drive, and stopped under the portico. Home coming! It hadn't been home to her for years. The drive was full of cars so she knew some sort of a party was on, but the great house was quiet as she entered. Everybody seemed to have retired, although Ray was usually a night owl.

But no, there were still some stragglers clinging to the ghost of the evening. Allaire paused on the threshold of the living room. A man was asleep on a divan with his hands folded across his chest. A girl in green evening gown had evidently just awakened. She was walking around uncertainly.

Allaire had never seen her before in her life. Her father's policy of perpetual open house brought many strangers in with the tide.

"What are you looking for?" she asked politely.

"The door, I think," said the girl in green. "Party seems to be over. Look at me walking around like a perfect sap." She giggled.

Allaire obligingly guided her to the staircase.

"There you are," she said. "Good luck and good morning."

"I'll take the luck and you can have the morning," said the girl.

Allaire went back to the living room and pulled a bell cord. Blythe, the butler, appeared, stifling a yawn as he saw who had summoned him. She gestured at the recumbent form on the divan.

"Please put him to bed," she requested. "And then go to bed yourself. The party," she added, "seems to be over."

Blythe and his unconscious charge having woefully disappeared, the girl sighed as she glanced about the room.

She'd always liked this room. It was wide and high-ceilinged and had a huge stone fireplace. There were pictures of famous racehorses on the walls, and trophy cases of silver loving cups, blue ribbons, and other mementoes of horse shows and steeplechases. She'd won a lot of them herself.

But the spirit of the room was faded with trays of empty and half-filled highball glasses, bottles, silver pails of melting ice, and ash trays crammed with cigar butts—many of them rouged.

Their odor combined to defeat effectively the fresh clean scent of gardens and lawns trying to get through the terrace doors.

As she stood there her father came in from the tap-room. He had a woman on his arm—a slim woman with very pale face, eyelids painted golden, and an evening gown not in the best of taste.

Allaire recognized her. She was a famous movie actress. Or she had been once.

"My God," exclaimed her father. "Where did you come from?"

"Drove from Washington," she returned. "Hello, Tala."

"Hello, Allaire darling," said the pale woman.

Ray was just beginning to recover from his surprise.

"I haven't seen her for weeks," he told Tala. "Fact. And now she shows up all of a sudden."

"I want a room and bath," said Allaire politely. "Southern exposure and American plan. And do you allow children?"

"I think," said Tala lazily. "I'll go to bed. I don't feel good for a thing."

"Goodness," commented Allaire, "as as a morning cloud and as the early dew—it goeth away."

"Put me down as early dew," said Tala wearily. She left the room and Allaire looked at her father, dark eyes ironic.

"Still paying tuition for night school, Ray?"

He sat down without answering. He looked tired, but he was still handsome, thick iron-grey hair, slate-blue eyes in a tanned face, and athletic figure. He'd never been fat and he would always have the gift of wearing his clothes with distinction.

"What have you been doing lately," he asked.

"The usual thing," said Allaire. "Theatre parties, dinner dances, a few night clubs, and a lot of small talk. Got sick of it and went to Washington to see Nell."

She shrugged. "Got sick of that too."

Ray chuckled. "Pretty terrible, isn't it? Who's Nell got on her string now? Some polished young under-secretary from the Bolivian Legation with white spats and penciled mustache?"

He laughed again. "Lord, what a bunch of Don Quixotes hang around her. She fills their skins with sherry and they all go looking for windmills. Don't blame you for leaving."

"Ray," she returned. "It's no better here and don't you forget it."

"You always were inclined to be snooty." Her father picked up the brandy decanter. "You're the proudest person on this green earth."

The girl in white polo coat gave an impression of a young Diana with burnished hair and a quick lithe strength. She blended in with the world of grace and rhythmic beauty represented in those gleaming tall silver cups and the pictures of clean-limbed racing perfection.

And Rayburne West with the early morning sun streaming on his evening clothes and the smell of brandy and that pale woman's perfume about him, seemed a natural completion to the canvas of bottles, glasses, melting ice, and ash trays. He seemed to sense that in her cool level glance, for he suddenly set his glass down and looked at her with some irritation.

"What's come over you?" he demanded. "You used to ride all day, dance all night, and pipe every man to mast for miles around. Don't try to kid me, Allaire," he requested. "You can't put your hair in pig-tails and make a bee-line for the nearest convent all of a sudden. You've raised plenty of hell in your time."

"I know," she inclined her head. "Although I hope my particular brand was never in bad taste. But I've suddenly realized what I used only to suspect—the best years of my life are going by wasted in silly inane motions that have no significance whatever."

She absently twined a finger in a small tangle of blonde hair at her forehead. "I want to feel worth while," she said quietly. "Does that sound like Chinese?"

"No," he said. "I understand perfectly. You'd like to be the pioneer woman traveling with her mate in a covered wagon shooting at Indians with one hand and holding her baby in the other. Very admirable, my dear. Every bored woman feels like that once in a while. Too bad there aren't any more covered wagons."

With Us Daily

Haste ye, and go up to my father, and say unto him, Thus saith thy son, Joseph, God hath made me lord of all Egypt: come down unto me, tarry not:

And thou shalt dwell in the land of Goshen, and thou shalt be near unto me, thou, and thy children, and thy children's children, and thy flocks, and thy herds, and all that thou hast:

And there will I nourish thee;
for yet there are five years of famine; lest thou, and thy household, and all that thou hast, come to poverty.

And behold, your eyes see, and the eyes of my brother, Benjamin, that it is my mouth that speaketh unto you.

And ye shall tell my father of all my glory in Egypt, and of all that ye have seen; and ye shall haste and bring down my father hither.

And he fell upon his brother, Benjamin's neck, and wept; and Benjamin wept upon his neck.

Moreover he kissed all his brethren, and wept upon them;
and after that his brethren talked with him.

And the fame thereof was heard in Pharaoh's house, saying, Joseph's brethren are come; and it pleased Pharaoh well, and his servants.

And Pharaoh said unto Joseph,
Say unto thy brethren, This do ye;
lade your beasts, and go, get ye unto the land of Canaan;

And take your father and your households, and come unto me;
and I will give you the good of the

Now you art commanded, this do ye; take your wagons out of the land of Egypt for your little ones,

father, and come.

the good of all the land of Egypt is yours.—Genesis 45:9-20.

THE TRUE SUCCESS

I HAVE found Robert Louis Stevenson one of the most inspiring of all writers. I have read and listened to those who speak of him as "old fashioned" and out of date. Well, let him be so for such. To me, he has always come as a light. "To travel hopefully" he once wrote in that loveliest of essays, "The Lantern Bearer," is a better thing than to arrive."

We make too much of gaining objectives. The great objective is to strive courageously. Tagore speaks of "the road" as a part of "the destination."

When a really great man dies, or when his life is appraised, it is not his wealth, or fame, or achievement that move the heart, but the simple kindnesses, the generousities, the homely virtues that clothed his character that are given the largest prominence in the public mind. These things outlive everything else. They form his enduring monument.

The clean mind, the kindly manner, and the simple loveliness of the late Will Rogers will long outlive his humorous expressions of the moment. It is to the former that the world wishes to pay tribute in a lasting memorial of usefulness to his memory.

I was deeply touched by that fine presentation upon the screen of Chic Sales, as Abraham Lincoln in "The Perfect Tribute." The true greatness of the man, exemplified in a most human and beautiful as well as simple incident, was there impressed upon the mind. The humility and entire selflessness of the President gave lustre to the very room in which he and the dying boy remained alone.

The true success is not confined to the task at hand, no matter how useful and worthy, but to those qualities which outlive all toil of the hands or the mind—gentleness of manner, kindness, courtesy, tolerance, courage, honesty of thought, unselfishness, and a careful regard to the rights and happiness of others.

U. S. Deputies Besiege House
Of Widow of Justice Pitney

Washington, Dec. 13 (AP).—Two assistant United States deputy marshals Thursday night were making a determined stand at the front and rear entrance of the R street home of Mrs. Florence E. Pitney, widow of Mahlon Pitney, an associate justice of the United States supreme court.
Their intent was to serve Mrs. Pitney with a summons in a civil suit allegedly arising from an automobile accident, and it was reported last night that the deputies were determined to remain until the summons had been served.

For more than a week, it was said Thursday night, the deputies have been seeking to serve the papers.
Mrs. Margaret Ferris, a deputy marshal, succeeded in entering the Pitney home yesterday, but it was reported that hunger forced her to abandon the watch, after she had remained several hours. Two deputy marshals began a 24-hour vigil Thursday morning.

The damage suit against Mrs. Pitney was brought by Beulah Whittington, of Washington, who asked $10,000 damages for injuries suffered, she claimed, when her automobile was struck by a car alleged to be Mrs. Pitney's.

Justice Pitney was appointed to the supreme court bench in March, 1912, by President Taft. He resigned in 1922 and died in Washington in December, 1924.

I FEEL FINE

Mothers read this:

A CONSTIPATED child is so easily straightened out, it's a pity more mothers don't know the remedy.

A liquid laxative is the answer, mothers. The answer to all your worries over constipation. A liquid can be measured. This dose can be exactly suited to any age or need.
Just reduce the dose each time, until the bowels are moving of their own accord and need no help.

This treatment will succeed with any child and with any adult.
Doctors use liquid laxatives. Hospitals use the liquid form. If it is best for their use, it is best for home use.
And today, there are fully a million families that will have no other kind in the house.

The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a doctor's prescription, now so widely known that you can get it all ready for use at any drugstore.

BRITISH HOUSE ACQUITS BARON

Colorful Pageant, Trial for Manslaughter, Consumes
Only Six Hours.

London, Dec. 13 (AP).—Amid tenth century pageantry, the 28-year-old Lord de Clifford was acquitted of manslaughter Thursday by a scarlet-robed House of Lords.

"Not guilty upon mine honor," the assembled peers intoned, one by one, placing their right hands over their hearts as they spoke.

The trial, resulting from an automobile accident, invoked for the first time in 34 years the ancient prerogative of a peer to be judged by the House of Lords on a felony charge, instead of by the criminal courts.

Pageant Lasts Six Hours
Six hours after the young baron, bare-headed and without his robes,
had strode into the chamber behind
"the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod," the colorful pageant was ended.

It dated back to the Magna Carta and the reign of King John—1199 to 1216 A. D.

Of the kingdom's peers only bishops are excluded from the right to such a trial, because they originally refused to recognize the jurisdiction of law courts.

De Clifford, who married the daughter of a London night-club hostess at the age of 21, pleaded innocent in the death of Douglas George Hopkins, a commoner.

He replied in the negative to the question: "How say you, my Lord, guilty or not guilty?" And then he listened intently as the sergeant-at-arms read from a parchment scroll:
"Our sovereign Lord, the King, strictly commands all persons to keep silence on pain of imprisonment."

No Evidence, He Says
The defense attorney, Lord Hall-sham, contended there was "no evidence of criminal negligence," or even negligence on the part of his client.

Then the solemn peers, seated in a horseshoe tier in their red robes and cocked hats, decided to free Lord de Clifford by majority vote.

In the last such trial, in 1901, Earl Russell was convicted and sentenced to three years in prison on a charge

GROWING UP

Once we had a little girl, but we haven't any more,
In her place there is a lady with her skirt upon the floor.

Once we had a little girl who wore stockings to her knee.
Now, instead of girlish stockings, she is wearing hosiery.

Once we had a little girl. Hand in hand we'd walk about.
Now a dignified young woman takes my arm when we go out.

Once we had a little girl who'd just learned her A B C's.
She is now sophisticated, reading novels, if you please.

Once we had a little girl and it wasn't long ago.
Now we have a charming maiden who believes she has a beau.

Oh, these changes come so swiftly that the child you put to bed May wake up a grownup lady with much wisdom in her head.

Of bigamously marrying Molly
Cooke, an American, at Reno, Nevada. Later he was pardoned by the king.

Proclamation!

Because of the sincere efforts being made by Major Edward Bowes to assist those talented persons who have not had an opportunity to demonstrate their fitness to entertain the public

And because of the initial appearance of a Major Bowes Amateurs on Tour in Gettysburg, December 17, I hereby proclaim

Tuesday, December 17, "Major Bowes Amateurs on Tour Day" in Gettysburg and I further urge the people of Gettysburg to accord their patronage to worth-while entertainment afforded by this troupe upon its appearance at the Majestic theatre.

Given under my hand and seal of this borough, December 12, 1935.

grades of cows found good action at fully steady terms, while bulls shared a limited trade. Stockers and feeders were firm to a few lots at weak to 25c. lower. Early trade did not bring out many transactions in the medium to good grades of steers. Scattered lots and loads, mainly 120-140 pound averages, sold at $16.25. Good grade beef cows cleared at $8.25 to $8.50. A few sales of long yearling type steers brought from $9.65. Most lots of common grade steers sold at $5.00 to $5.25. Common and medium grade beef cows cleared at $5.75; a few head of good grades at $6.25. Low cutter and cutter cows sold without delay at $3.50 to $4.50. Common and medium grade bulls brought $4.75 to $5.75; a few good head of bulls sold at $6.25 to $6.50. Calves—Light supply kept dealers on a steady basis, but weighty calves were in very narrow demand and weak to unevenly lower. Hogs—Hogs continued to meet with a narrow outlet at most centers today and prices were generally showing some losses. The local trade developed around 5c. lower than Wednesday. Good and choice grade 160-170 pound weights sold at $10.25 to $10.50, the latter price top. Desirable 140-160 pound weights brought $10.15 to $10.40; most 120-140 pound averages $10.10 to $10.30. Desirable 220-250 pound weights cleared at $9.90 to $10.25; heavier weights $9.25 to $9.50. Good packing sows were salable at $8.50 to $8.75 or slightly above.

Sheep—The sheep and lamb supply was the lightest of any Thursday this season. Only a scattering of the various grades were on offer and trade ruled about steady. There was some discrimination against a few heavy lambs, with weights above 100 pounds being discounted $12 per hundredweight. Odd lots of good and choice ewe and wether lambs of desirable weight sold at $11.25 to $11.75; common and medium grade slaughter ewes were $7.50 to $8.10; a few culls down to salable at $4.50; culls down to $3 and below.

DOUBT MAN IS LUER ABDUCTOR

New York Suspect Says He Is Last of Gang; Fingerprints Do Not Match.

New York, Dec. 13 (AP).—A man booked by police as Thomas Kelleher, 35, is being held here while police puzzled over his claim he was Thomas Wilder, sought in the kidnapping of August Luer, Alton (Ill.) banker, in 1932.

Detective Charles Lyons arrested Kelleher when he saw him acting suspiciously.

The detective found a police circular calling for the arrest of Thomas Wilder in connection with the Luer kidnapping. Lyons said Kelleher told him he was known also as Wilder and was in the house where Luer was brought.

Prints Fail to Match
At police headquarters, however, Inspector Joseph J. Donovan matched the suspect's finger prints with those of the Thomas Wilder named in the police circular and said the suspect was not the wanted man.

Kelleher was booked as a fugitive and held for Illinois police, however. Meantime, a query was sent to officials at Clayton, Mo., asking whether the man held here was wanted in connection with some other case.

The police of East St. Louis, Ill., also were informed of Kelleher's arrest and were asked if he was wanted in connection with the kidnapping of Dr. I. D. Kelley in 1931.

Police attempted to determine if Kelleher really knew anything about the kidnapping of Luer or was attempting to use acquired information to get himself sent back to Illinois.

The prisoner said he had not been in New York long, but had been in Baltimore and Detroit and had traveled through Texas.

Officials in St. Louis scoffed at Wilder's having seriously been considered a suspect in the Luer kidnapping, but were interested in his being the sole fugitive of a gang accused of having kidnapped Dr. Kelley.

It takes TIME to make OLD Friends

We like to make new friends. It is pleasant to watch this bank grow, as new names are added to the old names on our books.

But old friends occupy a special place in our affections. It takes time to make old friends, and they become for us the constant living reminders of the years back of us in our service to this community.
